AJMER- The land of Sunrise in Education

AJMER, the capital city of Rajasthan State, is a leading educational destination and ideal place for learning in the lap of nature. It is a great seat of learning and education. Ajmer was the only region in Rajputana that was directly controlled by East India Company. During the British rule in Ajmer, several schools and colleges were established to uplift the education standards in India. And later, Ajmer was the place from where the concept of convent education came in Rajasthan. Mayo college, Sophia girls school, Maheshwari Public School, Nagoor school, St. Anselm's, Birla International school are only few to name. Amids the open sky, clouds billow as cool winds ruffle over Ajmer. A beautiful city in the heart of Rajasthan, wrapped in the arms of the gentle Aravali range, exempting it from the stereotypical desert climate perceived by most. Strict boundaries of culture and age old heritage governs the society and inturn affects the young locality and social places with the same walls of security. Ajmer may be best known for Pushkar, where the only temple of Lord Bramha stands erect, it is also a highlight to the numerous educational institutions pondered all over Ajmer. Bhagwant University, an extending reach of Bhagwant Group of Institutions is one of those institutions, embracing the healthy environment, filtered of all the pollution to the least. Bhagwant University has taken a major stride on the path of development by opening the doors for the outside world, willing to share its peaceful surrounding, thereby casting a majestic tapestry of enriching shadow over Ajmer. Student from Bhutan, Nepal, Sudan, Yemen, Thailand, Malaysia, Mozambique, UAE and Afghanistan have been illuminated to walk through these doors of golden opportunity. Foreign students bring with them an extravagant array of culture allowing an exchange of tradition and different perspectives among different groups of individuals. A new place, new language and a new culture tags along a new hurdle in the lesson of life. Humans learn through experience; good or bad, and coming to Ajmer has been a whole new set as different minds and thoughts come together and try establishing a symbiotic relationship. Students have learned to adapt and mature with their own surrounding. They have been taught valuable life lessons as different societies obliges the students to gain new standards and values. As they endure the emptiness that comes along with being homesick, students grow not just physically but also in their minds. They learn to walk tall and mighty all by themselves without the safety of their parents. Students pick up new trend, lifestyle and values as they are exposed to this International environment delivered to them directly.
